MINERS AND OPERATORS ACCEPT NEW PARLEY

Naval Disarmament And Four-Power Pacific Pact Become Effective Today

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Two treaties negotiated at the Washington arms conference—the five power naval limitation agreement and the four-power Pacific pact—became effective today.

Italy is a party to the treaty providing for the scrapping of warships, but not to the Pacific agreement, which automatically terminates the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

The four power Pacific treaty was concluded here Dec. 13, 1921, the naval pact Feb. 6, 1922. Deposit of ratifications was necessary before either could go into effect.

Representatives of all signatory powers gathered at the state department and formally exchanged ratifications. The actual scrapping of first line ships under the naval treaty will begin immediately and by the terms of the four power pact the Anglo-Japanese alliance is terminated automatically.

GIRL ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF PASSING FRAUDULENT CHECKS

Money Replaced by Parents and Case Will Not be Prosecuted

A sixteen-year-old girl, seemingly modest and bashful, whose name is being withheld in respect of her parents, was arrested by the police Thursday evening on a charge of passing five fraudulent checks in the city.

The girl was arraigned in county court Friday morning. Police announced that the case would not be prosecuted on the recommendation of the district attorney. All of the money has been replaced by her parents.

She was arrested Thursday shortly after she had passed a check and had it cashed in one of the local banks.

It was only after a quizzing by Chief Webster that the girl finally admitted cashing a check during the day Thursday. When arrested, she carried about $24 in her purse, and had merchandise which amounted to several dollars in value.

In cashing the checks, police said the girl used names of women who it was later learned lived in Winona, Minn. and La Crosse. It was through her identification by a La Crosse resident that her correct name was learned.

The other four checks were passed in the months of June and July, police said.

Million Barrels of Oil Burning In Los Angeles

SAN PEDRO, Cal.—A large underground oil tank owned by the General Petroleum company, exploded here Friday morning at 9:25 o'clock. The blast was caused by spontaneous combustion and shook the entire city.

Approximately one million barrels of oil is burning.

Fears for the safety of three adjoining tanks and a number of nearby homes are felt as the tank shows signs of boiling over and running down the hillside.

Early reports declare the loss will reach several hundred thousand dollars and may be larger if other tanks are ignited.

A fresh southwest wind, springing up shortly before noon, swept the flames from the burning oil tank in the direction of nearby residences. Intermittent explosions occurred in the tank and a danger zone was maintained by the police.

DAKOTA DESPERADO KILLED RESISTING ST. PAUL ARREST

Man Wanted for Slaying Sheriff of Aberdeen Dies Fighting

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Edwin Rust, slayer of Sheriff L. C. Fullmer of Aberdeen, S. D., was shot to death in a gun fight with St. Paul detectives here early Friday when they sought to arrest him.

Rust had been arrested by the detectives who were unaware of his identity when he drove up to a garage, accompanied by a woman in a stolen automobile. En route to the police station, Rust, handcuffed, sprang from the automobile and fled into an alley. He removed the handcuffs in some manner not known.

Meanwhile the woman was questioned and from her was learned Rust's identity. Several detectives went to the residence where Rust had been living since August 1 under the name of Peter Thorsen.

As the detectives rushed open the door of Rust's room they were met by two shots, both of which went wild. In the answering fusillade, Rust was struck in the neck, the chest and the hip. He died almost instantly.

A reward of $500, dead or alive, had been offered for Rust's capture. He slew the sheriff while being taken on a train to Aberdeen, S. D., to face a robbery charge, and then jumped from the train, escaping.

W. H. MILLER IS SOUGHT BY POLICE AS WIFE DESERTER

The police department and sheriff's office are sending out postal cards to sheriffs and chiefs of police in various parts of the country in an effort to locate W. H. Miller and Mrs. Frank Kleinfeltz, who disappeared from the city on June 1. Miller is wanted on a charge of deserting his wife and three children. Miller is described as 36 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighing 180 pounds, dark complexion, light hair. Mrs. Kleinfeltz's age is given as 37 years old, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, weight about 145 pounds, has light colored curly or bushy hair, flashy dresser.

"They left the city in a new Vello sport model car," the police card says. "This couple probably in the booze business, or are conducting a booze joint." The arrest of Miller is requested.

PEACE HOPE IMPERILED BY NEW SPLIT

Miners Balk at Operators' Interpretation of their Check-off Concession

COMMISSION ADMITS THERE IS LITTLE HOPE OF PACT

Try Now to Persuade Leaders to Agree to Keep Working

NEW YORK.—By The Associated Press.—Miners and anthracite operators meeting Friday in a joint conference at the behest of the United States coal commission to avert a suspension of operations Sept. 1, reached an agreement to renew wage contract negotiations at Atlantic City next Monday.

NEW YORK.—By The Associated Press.—In a final effort to maintain peace in the anthracite coal fields after September 1, the United States coal commission Friday called before it S. D. Warriner, leader of the operators, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, for a face to face conference. They will report by 5 p. m. with answers to questions asked by the commission.

Despair of Settlement

Despairing in the attempt to iron out the technical disputes concerning the "check-off" system for collecting union dues, and recognition of the union, the commission has sounded out both parties as to their attitude toward an agreement to suspend hostilities on September 1, keep the mines running, and continue wage contract negotiations with arbitration to clinch all disputed points. Mine operators were said to be ready to go some distance with the plan, but John L. Lewis, president of the union and his associate officers, were understood to be in solid opposition.

Report to Coolidge

At Friday's meeting the commission prepared to demand clearing of the atmosphere. With prospects for agreement lessening momentarily, the commission was said to have no other course than to send up the conference, and report their findings to President Coolidge.

All observers conceded this would leave imminent the prospect of a complete shutdown of anthracite mining September 1.

In a statement Friday, Mr. Lewis said the operators had destroyed the miners' hope for a resumption of negotiations. He charged that the miners' proposition had been misrepresented to confuse the issue.

"There was nothing in the miners' proposal except the check-off, and the operators know that fact definitely," he said. "The miners did not offer to abandon demand number one. They only offered to waive the check-off feature of that demand. The operators undertook to read into the miners' proposition matters that were not there."

Hope for Peace

"We earnestly hope that a suspension may be avoided. We have offered a plan by which this may be accomplished. But it is evident that the operators are not at all anxious to avoid a suspension."

GAMING EQUIPMENT AT POLICE STATION GIVEN TO SHERIFF

Gambling equipment, consisting of a roulette table and wheel, about a bushel or two of chips and cards and several poker tables, seized by the police in a raid two months ago on the quarters of Andrew Cary, on North Third street, and since held at police headquarters, will be turned over to Sheriff Lund and will be held at the county jail. An order changing the custody of the property was issued Thursday by County Judge Bradley on request of District Attorney Gordon.

U. S. EXPLAINS REPARATIONS STAND

GENERAL ALLEN OFFERS PLAN FOR U. S. TAKING HAND IN RUHR TROUBLE

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass.—Gen. Henry T. Allen, who commanded the American forces in Germany, told the Institute of Politics here Thursday afternoon that the state department had before it a plan which he had submitted for American intervention in the reparations controversy.

Although he said he did not wish to make the plan public while the state department was considering it, he announced that he had discussed it with the state department, and intimated very strongly in the light of the context of his speech, that it called for joint action with Great Britain in making recommendations which both France and Germany could accept without loss of national pride.

After giving his arguments why he thought the United States should interfere in an economic war which, he said, would ruin our prosperity if we do not take action in time, Gen. Allen added that he had talked with the state department about his plan and that "a solution is possible and should be made."

He said he knew such action by the United States would be welcomed by England and again intimated that his plan called for joint recommendation by the United States and England.

LEGION HOLDS COMINGS UNFIT TO HOLD OFFICE; DENY ATTACK ON GUARD

Pittsburgh Iron Worker, En route from Minneapolis, in Accident Near La Moille

John McTigue, iron worker, on his way from Minneapolis to Pittsburgh, had a narrow escape from death when his Ford touring car broke through the soft shoulder of the river road, near La Moille, Minn., Friday morning, slipped down the embankment and turned over twice. McTigue was cut from the windshield. The top was wrecked, radiator bent, several spokes in the right rear wheel shattered and the right fenders slightly bent. McTigue was able to continue his journey after several motorists pulled his car back on the road. When he reached La Crosse he had his hand dressed at Grandview hospital.

LEGISLATURE IS BOOED IN STATE A. L. CONVENTION

Comings' Statements About State Guard Held False and Insulting

SUPERIOR, Wis.—The Wisconsin department of the American Legion in convention here Friday declared in a resolution adopted that it considered Lieutenant Governor George E. Comings' Madison "snuff" to hold a public office, "unfit to hold a public office."

The resolution was based upon alleged public utterances by Comings relative to the national guard, which were insulting and untrue and reflecting upon our honored dead and unbecoming a person in his position.

Vilas Whaley, Racine, was elected commander of the Wisconsin Legion by a unanimous vote at the final session.

Boo Legislature

The state legislature at Madison was booed by the legionnaires when Timothy Brown, chairman of the state legislative committee, declared none of the bills sponsored by the American Legion were passed, all having died in committee. He declared that the endorsement of the American Legion to a bill was a liability against the measure.

Resolutions passed at Madison, especially one referring to Eugene Debs, eulogizing him, following a speech at the capitol, were also booed.

Activities of the legion in Wisconsin must be curtailed in some branches, E. Ryan Duffy, state commander, told the convention, in his annual report, a decrease in paid membership was reported, the total now being 21,521. The state legislature again came in for censure Wednesday morning when Commander Duffy declared the legion had put all its effort to defeat a "cowardly attack by politicians against the National guard."

MRS. ARNOLD BOODY IS FOUND THROUGH STORY IN TRIBUNE

Mrs. Arnold Boody, who formerly lived in La Crosse and whose address was sought by the American Legion Bureau of Chicago, has been located in Fort Dodge, Iowa, through a story seeking to learn her whereabouts that appeared in The Tribune. The bureau sent a letter to Mrs. Boody at 425 North Sixth street, the residence of Mrs. Cora B. Wright. Mrs. Wright inquired of the mail carrier, people in the neighborhood, and hunted through the telephone and city directory but could not find Mrs. Boody or anyone who knew her. The Tribune printed the story of the hunt and a woman living across the street from Mrs. Wright saw the story and recognized the name as that of a woman who had roomed at her house but who had left for Fort Dodge in June.

ARNOLD DEFENSE IN HEAVY ATTACK ON INDICTMENTS

Swarm of Technical Objections Raised to Terms of Formal Charge

JURY COMPLETED BUT TRIAL IS NOT OPENED

Case Delayed to Hear Arguments of Value of 17 Counts

SUPERIOR, Wis.—Immediately upon opening of court Friday morning, counsel for Victor H. Arnold, on trial in federal district court here charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud, submitted alternative motions asking for quashing of the indictment or for dismissal of seven-teen separate counts.

The motion to quash the entire indictment was denied without argument.

The motion to quash counts four and eight to fourteen inclusive, because the "person" alleged defrauded therein was not defined, also was denied. Joseph Lawler of defense counsel took an exception to this decision.

Quash One Count

Count 31, technical last count, was quashed when District Attorney William H. Donaherty admitted it was not complete in itself.

Argument then began upon counts 23 to 26 inclusive which concern the alleged scheme to secure stock of the company.

Arnold is charged with using the mails to defraud. He was formerly president of the Madison Bond company of Madison and of the Victor H. Arnold company of Chicago.

Following completion of the jury late Thursday afternoon, defense counsel asked that the jury be excused and offered several motions attacking the indictment for consideration of the court pending the filing of formal written motions.

17 Counts Attacked

In all seventeen of the thirty-one counts in the indictment were attacked specifically, and the indictment as a whole was attacked.

The indictment alleges Arnold planned three separate and distinct schemes to defraud and cites thirty-one counts. Joseph Lawler of Chicago, just before court adjourned for the night, briefly declared he will attempt to prove that the indictment is bad in not confining itself to one count. He suggested the charges should have been contained in three separate indictments instead of one. He also averred that the last count, known as Number 31, which sets forth no specific acts to defraud, but is merely in the language of the statute, is not sufficient to stand alone.

Technical Brought Up

The attack began when Hal S. Corbett of New York, chief defense counsel, and formerly judge of Kentucky circuit court, moved that counts four, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen and fourteen violated a rule as old as English jurisprudence in that conviction on any of these counts would not bar future prosecution.

The language of the indictment in each of these counts recites that Arnold mailed a certain letter to a certain "person." In count four the person is named "Westfield bank," and in counts eight to fourteen, inclusive, "Taylor, Camp and Company." Corbett declared these are not persons and are not declared corporations which are legal persons in the indictment. If these companies are partnerships and his client convicted, Corbett said future charges could be based on the same grounds naming individual partners as the defrauded parties.

Couldn't Lose Claim

Corbett hit fundamentals of counts twenty-three to twenty-six inclusive by declaring that no one who accepted Arnold's proposition to stockholders as set forth in the indictment could lose anything.

The proposition of the defendant, the indictment narrates was that he offered to give stockholders of the Madison bond company for their stock, his personal notes for five years. Mr. Corbett averred that the indictment itself showed no fraud was committed because it contains verbatim copies of Arnold's offer to the stockholders, in which he agreed to put all stock surrendered to him in a trustee's hands as security for the notes. Corbett declared title to this mortgaged stock never passed to Arnold and that had his notes been worthless stock owners could foreclose and obtain their original stock from the trustees.

HUGHES EXPLICIT IN EXPLANATION TO LONDON OFFICIALS

FRENCH RENEW SCHEME TO SET UP RHINELAND STATE

Regards Activities of Separatists With Approval

AIX-LES-BAI, France.—By The Associated Press.—The communistic disturbances here are continuing with sanguinary results. Eight persons were killed and fifty injured Friday in collisions between the communists and police while fifteen persons injured in previous disorders died in the hospitals.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—By The Associated Press.—To clear away any misunderstanding in London regarding the attitude of the Coolidge administration on reparations, Secretary Hughes has cabled to the American embassy there the substance of the story carried from Washington by The Associated Press on Aug. 15, with a notification that the declarations it contained represented the precise position of the United States government.

This disclosure was made Friday as a result of the wide publication of untrue reports that the state department had sent to foreign governments through the American embassies a new note on reparations. The informative message to the embassy in London is the only communication on reparations sent aboard by the department.

The Associated Press statement referred to declared that President Coolidge was ready to extend American help to restore peace in Europe in any way that did not prejudice American interests, and that he was preparing to proceed with the collection of European nations' debts to the United States.

Tell Downing Street

LONDON.—By The Associated Press.—Acting upon cable advice from Secretary Hughes, the American embassy officials in London have made it clear to the British foreign office that the United States contemplated no departure from its attitude on reparations as taken before President Harding's death and as announced by Secretary Hughes in his New Haven speech.

This disposes of any hope on this side that President Coolidge's accession to office might result in a more active interest by the United States in Europe's problems.

The reiteration of America's policy was conveyed verbally and informally to the British government.

Poincare Ready to Talk

BERLIN.—If Chancellor Stresemann actually is seeking to get in touch with the French premier, he very likely will find an "encouraging atmosphere" for informal parleys awaiting him, is the opinion of political leaders here.

These leaders assert that the path to the French premier already has been made tolerably passable for Dr. Stresemann.

It is taken for granted in reichstag circles that the German industrialists would not hesitate to make use of their influence with the French industrialists and financial leaders with the purpose of actively furthering any German attempt which aims to seek a dignified way out of the Ruhr impasse for Germany.

There has been a marked change for the better in the character of the news brought in from Paris by the Berlin newspapers in the last forty-eight hours.

Admits Moratorium

PARIS.—M. Poincare will admit the necessity of a moratorium of Germany because of the situation, he says, she has voluntarily created, but he will argue that there is no reason to consider reduction of her obligations before she has shown willingness to pay, and that simply because the German manufacturing interests have been allowed to leave payments for their exports on deposit abroad and have been permitted to evade taxation, the allies are not called upon to modify their just reparation demands.

PARIS—The movement in the Rhineland looking to the establishment of a Rhineland republic, is beginning to be looked upon seriously in France since the three factions of the separatists have shown a disposition of getting together. Government (Continued on page six)

BARRED KLANSMEN MEET 1,000 STRONG NEAR STEUBENVILLE

Post Bonds to Release Eight of Members Held After Riot

ALL PUBLIC MEETINGS
FORBIDDEN IN THE CITY

K. K. K. Demands Mayor and
Police Chief Quit

STEUBENVILLE, O.—Barred from holding a meeting here, following the anti-Ku Klux Klan rioting Wednesday in which four men were wounded in a gun battle, approximately 1,000 members of the Klan met at Richmond, twelve miles west of here late Thursday night, police say.

Authorities said they did not know what transpired at the meeting but since it posted $1,000 bonds each for the release of eight members of an armed party which came from East Liverpool by automobile early Thursday morning, they supposed the rioting incident was discussed. The East Liverpool men were armed when arrested by Sheriff Edward Lums and were held as suspicious characters.

Mayor Hawkins has ordered police to prevent public demonstrations of any kind, the ban extending to even small gatherings on the streets. Protests against another outbreak will be continued.

Klan Chief to Live
Garwin J. Gibson, 35, local Klan leader, who is in a local hospital with a bullet at the base of his brain, is expected to recover, it was said. Frank Volney is being held at the county jail, charged with shooting with intent to kill Gibson. John De Santis who was said to have been one of Gibson's assailants, was shot through the left eye, and is in a critical condition at a hospital. Mosciano Spineti, 26, said to be another member of the attacking party, and who was shot in the left wrist, was removed to the hospital from the county jail. A fourth man whose wound in the chest was treated by a physician Thursday, is being sought.

Gibson declares he was driving to his home when he was fired upon. Returning the fire, he said, he wounded four of his attackers.

In a statement one local Klan demanded the resignations of Mayor Hawkins and Chief of Police Carter, declaring Wednesday night disorders were the result of lax law enforcement. The Klan has been active in the territory in the prosecution of law enforcement in recent months.

NESTOS PRAISES LEGION

WAHINGTON, N. D.—Governor R. A. Nestos, the principal speaker at the North Dakota Legion convention here yesterday, commended the legion for its work in the past and declared that America looks to the legionaries today for the intelligent, devoted and vigorous leadership needed in the labors of renewing the ideals and education of our people for citizenship and service.

Public Debate

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 15, 1923.
Editor, Tribune and Leader-Press.
Dear Sir: Please allow me a little space in your paper to express the thoughts of myself, my neighbors, and those of the motorists that have been stuck in the sand near the Hogan school this summer. These streets have been graded for at least two months and not a sign of any cinders or top coat put on yet. How long must such things wait before they are tended to? It has to be done eventually, why not now?

In case of a fire in this neighborhood the fire trucks cannot get within three or four blocks of it. We have a fine fire department in La Crosse but they are helpless when it comes to sand knee deep. It took three years to get this grading done, let's hope that it don't take that much longer before anyone can drive on it.

Then when cinders are put on, keep them dragged smooth and not let big holes get in them like other cinder streets in town where a fellow can break the springs or bite a piece out of the steering wheel. What we need is a good wide-awake street commissioner and need him badly—one that drives a Ford without shock absorbers preferred—and have him make the rounds of all the streets at least once a week. Then we would begin to see better streets, as he would soon get enough of stone bruised tires on street car crossings, jolted neck and nervousness caused from getting stuck in the sand.

I want to add also that it is about time for sidewalks along Jackson street and State road from Eighteenth street to Twentieth street. Residents in the southeast end have to walk in the road to get to a store or street car. And some motorists have the idea that this stretch of road is a speedway, and they step on the gas. This is very dangerous to the lives of any one on this road. There has only been one person killed so far on this road. Why wait until some one else is killed? Mormon Coulee road got a walk after one was killed.

This letter is not meant to slam anyone, only to wake them up to a few facts that exist all over the city.

I remain, yours truly,
A RESIDENT.

CANADA SEIZES U. S. GUNBOAT FOR DAMAGING LOCK

WASHINGTON.—The gunboat Gopher carrying Ohio naval reservists on their annual cruise was libelled and seized by Canadian authorities because of damage to a lock in the Welland canal, occurring during passage of the ship, the navy department was informed.

Louisville (Ky.) man was arrested for spanking his wife. Details, however, are coming back.

The Truth About Gasoline Prices

THE Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has announced an immediate reduction in the price of gasoline of 6.6c per gallon applicable throughout the entire territory in which it does business.

It asserts that the retail prices thus made are below the cost of production and distribution.

The Governor of the State of South Dakota, buying distress gasoline below cost of production, and charging against the State no adequate cost of distribution, is selling gasoline to the public in the State of South Dakota at 16c per gallon.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana), operating on its established policy that the customers who purchase its goods should never be compelled to pay a higher price than that fixed and maintained by any competitor, quality and service being duly considered, has met this price.

Other State Executives and Officers of municipalities, with entire propriety, have suggested that any prices made in South Dakota be made applicable in their States. Competitors in other states and communities over the territory, also buying distress gasoline below cost of production, have also cut the prices hitherto established and maintained, in substantial amounts.

In establishing the above price, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is not endeavoring to injure any of its competitors in any way.

It deprecates the stand taken by some of its competitors that the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is endeavoring, by reason of meeting these cuts in price and these demands for lower prices, to put its competitors out of business.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) does not wish to put any competitor out of business because it feels that competitors are necessary to the successful conduct of its business. It will welcome a change of attitude on the part of all parties concerned resulting in a reasonable price for gasoline which will enable not only it but all of its competitors to enjoy a reasonable profit.

It recognizes that the majority of its competitors are fine business men, entitled to the fairest treatment both by the public and by this Company.

The present situation is an exact parallel to one where the butcher, the grocer, the druggist, the dry goods and shoe merchants and every other retailer would be forced to sell at less than the wares cost.

How long would it last? What would a condition like this do to all of us—if it persisted and spread?

We want no monopoly—seek none. We want your trade—but only on the basis of quality and service—not as the result of impossible prices.

We want competition—you want us to have it. It makes the scales of business balance.

These are not idle words. They mean just what they say.

Turning Up

FEDERAL government crop reporters told the public early this week that seven million acres less winter wheat would be planted this fall than last year. Immediately the price of wheat turned up. The rise was not large, because a short crop next year does not mean a great deal just now when there is a surplus actually on hand. But the rise indicates how the wheat farmers will get out of their present difficulties.

By the time the various government agencies which are proposed for lifting the wheat farmer out of his troubles can get into action the pressure of necessity will have forced him to get himself out of trouble. Wheat will be grown next year only on land that is good for nothing else. Wherever possible the farmers will drop wheat and go in for production that promises a profit. The consequence will be that the price of wheat will start up hill again. Holding wheat of the present crop off the market will help, if there is no governmental price-fixing to assure the wheat grower that he will get a good price and so lure him into repeating this year's blunder.

Incidentally, it may be pointed out that the "speculative" trading in wheat which the farmers have been cursing so hard will play its part in bringing back the price. It was the speculators who turned the price up after the government prediction of a short acreage next year. The government report didn't reduce the present supply of wheat one bushel, nor do a thing toward finding a market. But it tipped the speculators to a condition which they interpreted in terms of price. If the price of wheat had to depend on straight buying for use of the current crop, the government report wouldn't have made a ripple. The speculators put some millions of dollars into the wheat farmers' pockets that they would not have had if there had been no speculation.

No doubt the speculators help lower the price of wheat, too. A month or so ago they interpreted the present crop condition in terms of price, just as they deduced higher wheat from the recent acreage prediction. But the recent incident shows well enough that the speculator only anticipates and does not determine the price of the commodity he deals in.

Unlimited speculation, leading to corners and other unsocial transactions, can do much harm. But the speculator has his uses, too. In seeking a profit for himself he acts as a balancing factor that smooths out the path of both producer and consumer. He is almost a necessary part of our machinery of distribution, and we should be hard put to it to keep the machine running properly if he were entirely eliminated.

A Romance in "Gas"

WHAT happened to gasoline is an interesting story. Farmers who have surplus wheat may follow it with interest, for surplus gasoline is the keynote to the cut in prices. The point of contact with the farmer situation is that oil is thoroughly organized to protect its market, while wheat thus far is only partially organized.

The public is interested, too, quite aside from the chance to buy cheap gasoline. It is interested because the incident shows that no matter how rigid and thorough-going the organization, supply and demand will operate against it when the holders of surplus find themselves in financial distress.

For some time there has been a large surplus of gasoline. As a result a large number of independent companies found themselves "in a pickle." They had to turn their product into money. Consumption was not brisk enough to take it off their hands. Some of them began selling in tanks at a substantial reduction.

Governor McMeister of South Dakota saw the opportunity. He began buying surplus gasoline at the low rate for retail to the consumers of his state. The movement spread to other states, including Wisconsin. The organization was not strong enough to withstand the onslaught. All gas companies, including Standard Oil, immediately met the South Dakota retail prices. And so we have the cheapest "gas" in many months.

The directors of the Standard Oil company in making their cut announced that the new price was forced upon them by "distress gasoline," and that it was far below the cost of production and distribution. This statement was disputed before it was uttered. Several weeks ago Senator LaFollette made the public statement that gasoline could be sold at a profit for 10 cents less than the then current prices.

It is rather a good lesson in practical economics—this triumph of supply and demand over organized price fixing. No matter how strong farm organization may become, it too, will break at its weakest spot whenever farmers generally lack the financial means to carry their crops over a dull market.

The gasoline market will reassert itself whenever surplus is substantially wiped out. Governor McMeister could buy only because producers had to sell. There was no philanthropy in the action of independent companies selling to a state governor far below current prices, and as soon as they can recuperate they will return to the old policy of taking what the traffic will bear.

Is France Breaking?

BURIED in a French cable signed by Vincent Sheean, Paris correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, are two paragraphs which, if well founded, probably have tremendous significance. They appeared in Chicago Tuesday morning, following the action of Great Britain which practically amounted to the dissolution of the entente, and the statement of Chancellor Stresemann that Germany approved the British notion of appealing the Ruhr situation to the world court. We quote Mr. Sheean's words:

The French foreign office today publicly and in private conversations with officials declared that France expects much from Herr Stresemann and is willing to accept the terms he proposed last March if he abandons passive resistance in the Ruhr. But such reparations must begin within a month, or at the most two months, because the French now see England is swaying into an alliance with Germany which will definitely bar France's way to any understanding with any nation.

It is also suggested that the passive resistance now is rapidly disappearing. With large numbers of Germans working under the French and with thousands paying taxes, in a month Herr Stresemann will not even be obliged to abandon the resistance because it will already have disappeared, the French say.

If the above information is authentic it would seem without question to mean that French statesmanship has at last accepted the inevitability of making some new adjustment in its relations with Germany. The dispatch indicates that it will save its face upon its demand for the cessation of passive resistance by adopting the official assumption that passive resistance no longer exists. By so doing France will pave the way to a new agreement with Germany, as a step essential to its program if the French ministry would avoid the consequences of an international reparations commission. One thing France would save by this step would be that it would keep the readjustment in its own hands rather than to submit to an international judicial decision.

However, it is difficult to believe that having sacrificed the entente rather than do certain things demanded by her ally, the French government would immediately proceed to do substantially the same thing on its own private account. Perhaps Mr. Sheean's report will be amended by later developments.

SWEDEN TO LICENSE ALL RADIO RECEIVERS

STOCKHOLM.—Radiophone sending stations in Sweden are to be owned and supervised by the state, while receiving sets may be installed and operated by virtually any person who goes through the formality of obtaining a license. This is indicated by the request which the Swedish government has just made to the department of telegraphs to submit formal application for the right to establish radiophone broadcasting service. The request also invites further proposal of plans and requires the department to consult with the proper military authorities, as well as with the Meteorological Institute.

Although the state is to own and control the radiophone stations, the actual operation is to be a concession to one or more private companies during the first few years, according to the general plans.

Revenues for the necessary expenses of operation are to be obtained by taxing the owners of receiving sets. A portion of these taxes will go to the state and the rest will go to the operating company. Amateurs may manufacture their own receiving sets if they please, and there are no strict limits to the wave length that may be used.

WOMEN HOLD BIG GOVERNMENT POSTS

WASHINGTON.—Women are becoming a larger factor than ever in the running of the government.

When Miss Louise Stanley assumes office as chief of the newly established bureau of home economics of the department of agriculture September 1, there will be more than half a dozen high-salaried women assisting in the activities of the nation.

Women now in executive positions in Washington are scattered through many government departments and bureaus. Some of the higher ones are:

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, $7,500; Mrs. Helen H. Gardener, civil service commissioner, $5,000; Miss Mary Anderson, director of the women's bureau, department of labor, $5,000; Mrs. Bessie Parker Bruggeman, chairman of the employee's compensation commission, $4,000; Miss Margaret M. Hanna, chief of the correspondence division of the state department; Miss Lucille Atcherson, the first woman member of the diplomatic corps, and Miss Margaret R. Wilson, chief of the trading with the enemy division of the federal trade commission.

MOTORISTS APPEAL FOR FEDERAL PROBE OF GASOLINE TRADE

Demand Adherence to Law of Supply and Demand in Price-fixing

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Federal investigation of the gasoline situation with particular regard to supplies and prices was recommended Friday by the National Motorists' association which has just completed a survey of the industry.

The report points out the need of government protection of the industry but declares it would be unwise for the government to enter into competition with established concerns in the sale of gasoline.

Adherence to the law of supply and demand in competition with gasoline prices is advocated.

The report attributes the "present price cutting to the fact that some companies have been forced to unload gasoline stocks with resultant competition."

ALL TREMPPEALEAU ASKED TO PICNIC AT COUNTY ASYLUM

Superintendent McKivergin has sent out an invitation to every community. In brief, all residents of the county are invited to come to the picnic from 1:30 to 5:30 next Saturday. Those who desire to come earlier and bring picnic dinners will find tables and accommodations provided.

The program will be informal. The visitors will mingle; old friends will renew acquaintance and new acquaintances will be made. Three bands have been invited to contribute to a musical program. A number of short addresses will be made.

CAVE GIRL LONGS FOR RETURN TO WILDS

EMMA ADAMS

TOPEKA, Kas.—Emma Adams, 15, was offered a far better home than she enjoyed. Educational advantages and feminine finery— But she fearfully barged to be allowed to go to a cave on a river island, to eke out an existence selling fish and cutting wood. Which proves, if anything, that sentiment counts for as much as convenience in home making.

Stranded from his wife, Emma's father lost his position several years ago. He could not get new work. Finally, with Emma and her 17-year-old brother, he moved to an island in the Kansas river, 10 miles from here. There he made an uncertain living selling fish and cutting wood, while in Swiss Family Robinson style, they have lived in a cave.

The dome of Kansas' capitol was always in sight of the girl. Civilizing influences were almost at her elbow. But, clad in overalls and barefooted, she was reveling in her freedom when probation officers visited the island and brought her here for a hearing.

"Dresses feel queer," she told the judge. "I'm used to boys' clothes and going barefooted. I love my chickens and ducks. And I was able to help daddy, too, in keeping house. In town I'll be a laughing stock. Let me go back."

The girl wept. So did her shoeless and hatless father, who fears his daughter will be both unhappy and unhealthy in restricted new environments. So, too, did a number of spectators. But the law was adamant.

Meantime, investigation shows the girl had several years of school before she went on the island—so a debate is arising as to whether she should be forced to leave a healthy life she loves for the superficialities and confinements of what is called civilization.

CITY CHILDREN WELL GUIDED IN VOCATION

La Crosse Public Schools Have Unusual Department of Vocational Guidance

Through the work of Miss Josephine Hinton, director of vocational guidance in the public schools La Crosse is becoming famous. Miss Hinton appeared recently before the summer conference of New England Vocational Guidance and spoke on Guidance as carried on in the schools of La Crosse. This conference was a meeting of some of the foremost educators of the country who recognize the great value of the work being carried on in the La Crosse schools.

Miss Hinton works with both school attendance and vocational guidance the schools are trying to give the kind of direction that will lead to good work, service and happiness, trying to offset false guidance which is built on the ignorance of youth. A complete guidance program operates at every point of the pupils' career rather than at a specific time. During the year 1923 a course of study in occupations has been formulated and is taught by the teachers in the seventh and eighth grades. The course considers those three things, the relation of education to work, the characteristics of specific callings, the general occupational problems. This information is worked out and given to the pupils in connection with their other studies.

Personal consultations are held with all pupils of the eighth A grade. Through these consultations and the classes in occupation the pupil can realize more fully his aptitudes and abilities and thus secure the right view towards future education and work. The next step is in giving employment supervision and counsel to pupils who leave before completion of the course and to those who graduate from high school.

Classes in occupation are also taught in the adjustment room and in the vocational school classes. All of this work helps the children to find the work best suited to their abilities and saves many failures that would come from misplacement in work.

The La Crosse Scholarship Fund made it possible for three boys and one girl to continue their education here. The Community Council through its initiative in getting funds and also in contributing to this fund brought this about. The Twentieth Century and La Crosse Woman's clubs also gave to this fund. Miss Hinton kept close watch on the scholarship students and through personal consultations assisted them in their work. Attendance also was taken care of by Miss Hinton.

Household Suggestions

TIED EYES

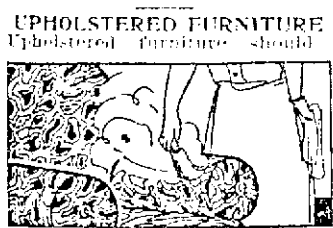

If you have spent the day doing fine sewing or any work that requires close observation, bathe your eyes in hot water and then in cold before retiring. It will ease any congestion and calm the nerves.

DRINK MILK

Milk is a valuable food and should have a place in every diet. Those who do not care to drink it should take it in soups or other cooked forms.

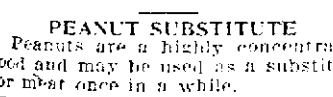

UPHOLSTERED FURNITURE. Upholstered furniture should be dusted with a brush and wiped with an old silk duster.

FLAT IRONS

All flat irons are better for being greased once in a while with warm mutton tallow or sweet oil. Let them stand a few days after the grease has been applied, then wash in strong soap suds, rinse in hot soda water and wipe dry.

PREVENTING EVAPORATION. Always cork your ammonia, gasoline and other volatile substances

PEANUT SUBSTITUTE. Peanuts are a highly concentrated food and may be used as a substitute for meat once in a while.

RETAIN YOUTH BY EXERCISE AND DIETING

Noted Expert Tells How To Retain Youth By Daily
Practice

This is the first of a series of Beauty Exercises written by Anne Dolan, noted New York physical culture expert, to help you retain your youth and beauty.

By ANNE DOLAN
You can't stay young and beautiful without making an effort.

The most perfect engine in the world would never run indefinitely without repairs and your body won't either.

So when I tell you to get up "half an hour or even an hour earlier than you ordinarily do in order to prepare intelligently for your day's work and get yourself in proper shape to do your best, don't rebel.

Just try my plan for three months, then if you want to go back to the old way, do so with my blessing.

As soon as you arise in the morning, mix yourself the following cocktail—one quart of water and one teaspoonful of salt.

You won't care so much for this drink at first, but force yourself to swallow it for the first few days, and then you'll find you don't mind it so much.

Fill the Lungs

Then go to an open window, or outdoors, if possible, and practice deep breathing. Slowly take just as much air into your lungs as you can, and hold it as long as you can. Do the bending and stretching exercises I will describe in the articles that follow. Or do the daily dozen, if you like. And manipulate the muscles of your abdomen lightly as you do.

About half an hour after you have consumed the water you may have coffee or orange juice or any fruit you like and a little solid food, such as a slice of whole-wheat bread toasted, or a bran muffin or a light cereal—that's enough.

At lunch time you may have a sandwich of whole-wheat or dark bread with a filling of lettuce and a glass of buttermilk or skim milk. Perhaps you've been used to desserts and starchy foods, but you should get over the habit.

Use Your Teeth

Then for dinner you can have pretty much what you like—soup, meat, a salad and a dessert. Go lightly on the starches and sugar and don't give the butter a second glance. And chew, chew, chew. Chew until you no longer get any taste from the food. That way you get every ounce of nourishment and your teeth do the job they were intended for.

During the day, as you feel hungry, drink copiously of good fresh water. This will relieve the pangs of hunger.

NEXT—Miss Dolan tells how to have a beautiful neck.

GONA COFFEE—family's choice.

BAR FOUR REALTORS

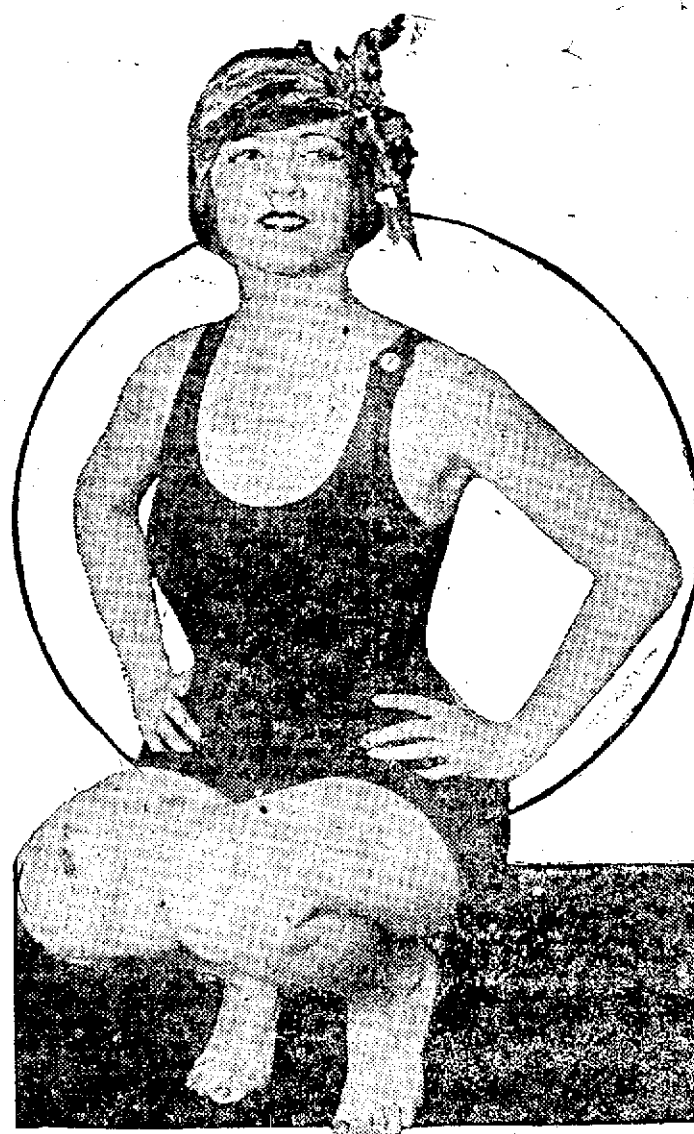

MADISON, Wis.—Four men were denied licenses to sell real estate by the Wisconsin Real Estate Broker's board on Thursday. They are Robert D. Taylor, Louisville, Ky.; Max Abel, Stevens Point, Wis.; Ferdinand Steinhert, Abbottsford, and Palmer Vinger, Greenwood, Wis. Mr. Taylor was denied a license because he had been selling subdivision property in small towns under cash price auction methods.

COLD PLATES

Set the plates you are going to serve your salad on in the ice box for a while before they will be used. Cold plates for cold dishes are quite as important as heated dishes for meats.

KEEP BUGS OUT

Keep the cracks in your kitchen cupboards filled, and have no food standing around uncovered if you wish to make bugs unwelcome.

DO THIS A DOZEN TIMES BEFORE YOU GO TO WORK

WIDE FRINGE

One sees many very distinctive frocks of black satin with no trimming save a wide fringe about the feet. Large black velvet hats are the inevitable accompaniment.

DARING COLORS

One of the most daring color combinations recently noticed at a smart restaurant was a yellow wrap edged with white fox, worn with a white satin gown and pink satin footgear.

JACKETS AND CAPES

The smartest shops are showing little jackets and capes to accompany all the frocks. Evening gowns frequently have their own wraps, too.

INSIDE SLEEVES

A narrow inside sleeve of crepe or net worn inside the wide flaring is one of the new wrinkles noticed on the fall frocks.

SWEET SINGER FROM SHELBY MAKES DEBUT

'Pat' Stops Show in Her Follies
Debut in New York on Monday

NEW YORK—Patricia Salmon made her first New York appearance in the Ziegfeld Follies last night. She comes from the great open spaces at Shelby, Mont., where New York newspapermen are easily bored, and there were those who were afraid her appearance would demonstrate again the advisability of letting girls of purest rare serene blush in their native tent shows all unseen. These pessimists were happily surprised.

Miss Salmon revealed an attractive appearance and a sweet and adequately powerful voice. She sang a ditty of the effete eastern cut—all about giving up Rogers, who owns two garages; giving up Jim Diva, the taxicab driver, and even, no joshin, taking in washing, all for the love of Mike—and she modelled.

Her efforts met with the thunderous approval of the audience, whose celebrities included Will H. Hays, and the applause temporarily halted the start of the next act.

GERMANY FINED FOR CLOSING KIEL CANAL TO BRITISH

THE HAGUE.—By The Associated Press.—The permanent court of international justice Friday handed down a decision against Germany in the case involving the use of the Kiel canal by foreign vessels. HUGHES EXPLICIT IN EXPLANATION TO LONDON OFFICIALS

Discuss Rhine Money The appeal of the Rhinelanders for the issuance of special Rhineland money will probably receive no official answer as the French government is apparently determined to avoid being compromised by any movement that might be regarded in Germany as subversive. The question of Rhineland money is connected with the Ruhr problem, and the date and manner of its issuance will depend upon developments in the Ruhr, France and Belgium. It is understood, however, that plans completed for its issuance at the moment it becomes necessary, but it is said this will be done regardless of the separatist appeal.

Considerable interest was aroused by the proclamation issued by the separatist leaders in Coblenz on Wednesday committing the proposed republic to payment of the Rhineland's share of the reparations owed by Germany.

Hits German Loan The interallied reparations commission formally notified Germany on Thursday that reparations constitute a prior claim on the resources which Germany was expected to utilize to guarantee her new gold loan.

The commission decided on this action on Tuesday by a majority vote the British delegate abstaining from voting, but the announcement was not made until Thursday night that a letter of notification had been delivered to the German delegation in Paris.

Refer to Letter The communication refers to the previous letter from the commission, March 27, calling attention to Article 248 of the treaty of Versailles giving the allies a prior claim on the German government's assets. The letter concludes:

"The fact that the German government has not thought it proper to ask for an exception under that article makes it necessary for the commission to make an express reservation as against the subscribers to the loan no less than other parties, of its right of priority against any funds which may be assigned by the German government to the payment of interest or repayment of the capital of the loan in question, more particularly if the proceeds of the loan itself are not applied to the discharge of reparations annuities."

PACIFISM DROPS FROM FORD IDEAS SINCE WORLD WAR

Wants Strongest Navy in the World; Held Actively Out for President

NEW YORK.—By The Associated Press.—The assertion that there would be another world war and "the United States should get into it at the beginning and clean them all up," was made by Henry Ford in September, 1922, it is declared in a biography of the manufacturer, written by Allan R. Benson, once a socialist candidate for president, published on Thursday.

Mr. Benson says the statement was made at a time when the diplomatic situation between Great Britain and Turkey was at its most acute stage and rumors of war were heard on all sides.

Is a Candidate "Ford's views on war and peace have changed radically since the beginning of the world war," writes Mr. Benson. "He told me in 1918, that he would not be in favor of resisting even invasion by armed force. He took extreme pacifist position. After America entered the war, he perhaps contributed more to its prosecution than any other civilian. He now believes that we shall be most likely to have peace if we have the strongest navy in the world."

As an indication of how Ford felt toward the idea of being president, Mr. Benson describes an incident which he says occurred in January 1922, after a luncheon attended by the full staff of executives of the Ford Motor company.

Two In a Taxi

BY JANE OSBORN

It was a peculiarity of Leonard Titus that he always did his most important writing on the train on his way into the city from his home in the suburbs.

Some of his city friends had expressed their amazement that he, a bachelor, with no taste or talent for golf or tennis or any of the diversions that would keep a bachelor in the country, persisted in living so far from town. Leonard made some light excuse. It would have sounded too absurd if he had said that he didn't come to the city to live because his best work was always scribbled with a lead pencil on the pages of a notebook in the smoking car of a commuter's train.

Leonard Titus was perhaps the best known editorial writer of the city; at least the business manager of his paper advertised him as such, and his fame had gone out throughout the land and across oceans until cabinet members called him in conference and he was asked to serve on committees to meet very distinguished foreigners. Any one would have been interested to meet Leonard Titus.

John McKoy, the taxi driver who almost invariably took Leonard Titus from the railroad station to the newspaper office two miles away, had somehow found out who his customer was and, henceforth, felt honored in having him for a "steady."

John always waited a reasonable time after the 9:32 arrived, refusing other fares until he was perfectly certain that his distinguished customer was not coming.

One October morning the clock on the station facade pointed 9:45 and Leonard Titus had not arrived. John McKoy decided to wait no longer. That is, he reflected on the subject when a young woman, hurrying out of the taxi entrance of the station, turned away her handbag to him by way of summoning him.

She did not possess the easy manner of one accustomed to riding in taxis. If she had been she would never have waved her bag in that manner, even though, as it happened, there were no other taxis standing at that stand at that particular time.

John McKoy was about to pull out when he spied his "steady," Leonard Titus, coming out of the waiting room. John McKoy stopped short, got out of the taxi and went around to talk to the young lady inside.

"I am sorry, but there is my steady," he said. "You see I am obliged to take him—he's an important person—he has to get to his office, you see."

"How do you know I'm not important?" said the young woman. She did look very, very young as John McKoy looked in at her face blushing with something like rage. "I never heard of putting any one out of a taxi—just because some one else wants it. I got here first and I'm going to stay here. It happens that it is as important for me to get to my office as for this—"

"It's Leonard Titus, the great writer," said the taxi driver, and just then Mr. Titus arrived on the scene and seemed the situation.

"If the young lady doesn't want to get out, all right," he said, looking anxiously at his watch. "But maybe she wouldn't mind letting me go along too. I'm in a dence of a hurry, train late and they go to press by 11—I'll take the seat outside." Leonard was now raising his hat to the young lady in the taxi. "You won't object? You're going downtown, I suppose. You can drop me on the way."

The young lady, who had shown that at least she had heard of Leonard Titus when the driver mentioned his name, seemed not to object.

"I'd just as soon have you ride inside," she said. "That is, if you want to."

Leonard Titus got in beside the young woman, bowing politely as he did so.

He looked a little embarrassed. Then he regarded his watch again, and then with a look of apology toward the young lady he dove into his briefcase for a notebook and soft lead pencil.

"You'll pardon me, I hope?" he said, and began to read the scribbling in the notebook eagerly.

"You mean I'm late," he said after a few minutes. "And I must get this to the typist. You have been very good to let me ride. I must go to Hill street—do you go as far as that?"

"Yes," said the young lady, and then, "I don't in the least object. The taxi man told me who you were. I have always wondered what you looked like."

Leonard Titus straightened the glasses on his nose and sat up a little straighter. "And who do you think I look like?" he asked without a shadow of impertinence.

"Well, not exactly what I expected," he said, "but I thought you were a little taller and perhaps a little more bald and not quite so heavy. But I knew your eyes were blue and that you had hands like that."

had got out of the taxi after him, and having said good morning had disappeared into the crowd while he was paying the driver.

She hadn't even suggested paying her share, though of course he would not have considered such an arrangement. The whole thing was quite mystifying—amusing, too, because she was such an attractive little girl that Leonard Titus wanted very much to see her again.

The next day he was still thinking about her and was dwelling with regret on what he had said of typists.

He might have given her offense, and surely he had spoken only lightly, as a matter of fact, when he thought of it the girl who did his typing had proved herself to be surprisingly accurate.

To be sure, he had never seen her—did not even know that one girl always did the work. But every morning when the neatly typed sheets were brought to him by an office boy he looked through them to find barely a single mistake. In fact, very often mistakes in his own spelling were made right in the copy.

Leonard Titus sat musing at his desk in the newspaper office where he spent a brief hour or two every morning attending to his correspondence and answering letters to a dictaphone. Suddenly he jumped to his feet, sat down again as suddenly, and called to the switchboard girl through his telephone to connect him with the typing room.

"Is there a girl there named Mason—Florence Mason?" he asked.

downed on me that perhaps you read those editorials every day because you had to. The fact that you got off at this street seemed to corroborate that theory."

"And I didn't stop to pay my share," said Florence Mason, blushing. "I knew you wouldn't let me, anyway, and I wanted to get away. I didn't want you to know that I worked here and did your copying."

When Leonard left a few minutes later Leonard Titus saw her to his office door. "Then I'll meet you in the entrance waiting room at 12:30 and we'll have luncheon anywhere you want. We've been collaborating for years. We ought to get better acquainted."

And that was the formal introduction of Leonard Titus to the charming young woman who very soon afterward became his wife.

MADISON, Wis.—Attorney General Andrew B. Dougherty of Michigan, and Herman Ekern, attorney general of Wisconsin, conferred informally Thursday on the action to be taken by the two states in the suit against the Chicago drainage district.

The state of Wisconsin now has litigation pending, and the conference was preliminary to a final decision as to what action the state of Michigan will take.

Michigan, Mr. Dougherty intimated will bring suit on the same grounds as the state of Wisconsin, basing it on the damage caused by the lowering of the water levels of Lake Michigan. Whether this suit will be in conjunction with the Wisconsin suit, or started independently and later joined remains to be seen.

A meeting of the attorney generals of the states of Minnesota, Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin is to be held later, and at that time a definite question will be made, Mr. Ekern said.

MADISON BETTORS BACK HORSE WHICH FALLS DEAD IN RACE

MADISON, Wis.—Madison fans expected to make some money at Rosebel but they didn't.

Paul Nikas, proprietor of a Madison ice cream parlor, owned Guy O'Danna, considered a fast horse that would stand considerable backing.

Madison track followers cheered as O'Danna struck into the home stretch at Rosebel and then the animal fell dead.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio.—The pipe mill of the Republic Iron & Steel company was virtually idle Friday as the result of a walkout of men who work ten hours a day and who, with the inauguration of the eight hour day in other departments, want either an increase of pay for a ten hour day or a reduction of the work day to eight hours.

TWO HELD IN ROBBERY

WINONA, Minn.—Alvin Kolkowski, aged 19, manager of a Plainview Ice Cream company, and Jess Voehlke, aged 16, an employee, were held today without charge in connection with the alleged robbery of the Plainview creamery Monday night. Creamery officials, aroused over recent thefts, lay in wait in an effort to detect the possible thieves. They told the authorities. They said that Kolkowski and Voehlke drove to the creamery in a truck about 11 p. m. and gained entrance with the aid of a set of keys.

SAYS AMATEUR HAS NO CHANCE IN OIL

MADISON, Wis.—An uninformed man buying oil stock might as well sit down at a table with professional gamblers, play poker and expect to win. Expert geologists pick suitable sites for drilling oil wells and frequently get no oil and the man who is not an expert has but slight chance to win. Prof. W. H. Twenhofel of the geology department of the university, declared in speaking at the convention of the National Association of Securities commissioners in the capitol on Thursday.

There is not one acre in a million where oil is likely to be found, he declared. He told of a company which attempted to organize recently to drill for oil in southern Wisconsin and the difficulty of convincing the promoters that they had no chance for success.

BILLIONS OF NEW CAPITAL WILL BE NEEDED FOR FARMS

Huge Sums Must be Invested in Rundown Farms During Next Ten Years

WASHINGTON, D. C.—By The Associated Press—agriculture, which has been turning out a capacity product with its physical equipment in a run-down condition, must within the next ten years save up and reinvest in the farm plant from $3,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000 of new capital, according to economists of the department of agriculture, who say this is a conservative estimate.

For three years farmers have patiently patched, mended, repaired and used "makeshifts," an official report says. "Sometime in the coming decade the farm must have about the same replacement and renewal of productive plant that the railroads are now going through. Before 1933, three-fourths of the farm buildings will require new roofs and new paint. Probably a half-million new houses, barns and auxiliary buildings will have to be built. Half the present mileage of fencing will have to be replaced and much new fence put up. Millions of new tile must be laid. The haying and harvest machinery will have to be replaced almost entirely; tillage machinery in large part; wagons, harness, etc., in part. Millions of new automobiles, tractors and trucks must be bought. Millions of tons of new piping, wiring, barn equipment and small tools, millions of new gas engines and stationary power appliances; millions of feet of lumber and tons of cement must all be bought. Millions of tons of fertilizer and lime must be poured into the soil of the east and south to restore pre-war fertility. The country's work horses are old and before 1933 almost a new crop must be raised.

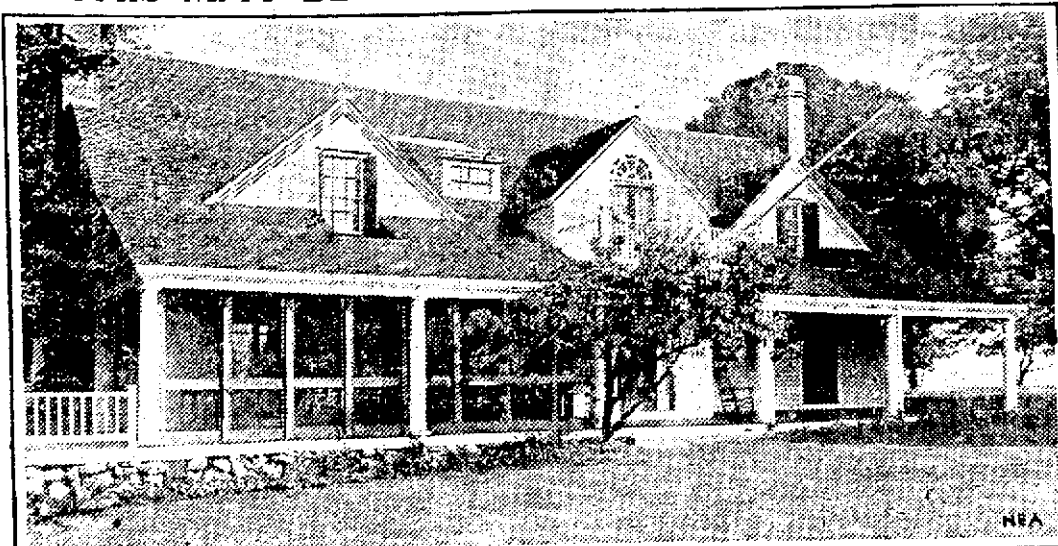

The men who control great capital resources must realize agriculture's real and unusual need for new capital and they must realize that farming in this country is still a basic industry—an industry with a future that will pay ample returns on every dollar wisely invested. One of the rural community's very serious problems during the next five or ten years will be debt."

FRANCE'S SILENT PREMIER SPENDS DAYS IN WRITING

PARIS—Premier Poincaré uses more pens in a week than did his predecessor Briand, in a year, a keen observer of the French foreign office said recently. The reason is that Poincaré speaks little, but writes much. Briand always had a cigarette in his hand; Poincaré always has a pen.

The present premier receives very few callers. He remains at his desk throughout long days—from 12 to 11 hours—writing. There is not a single document coming out of the ministry of foreign affairs, whether they be grave and solemn instructions to ambassadors, or minor matters of routine business, that the premier does not see personally and often times carry the rest or amplifies in his own hand.

GOVERNMENT SEEKS NAVAL FUEL SUPPLY IN NORTHERN WASTES

Traces of Oil Found in "Mystery Land" in Northwest-ern Alaska

WASHINGTON—(A. P.)—The last "mystery land" under the American flag, a vast stretch of mountain and plain in northwest Alaska, now is under exploration by the federal government.

The tract comprises some 35,000 square miles, and was set aside last February by President Harding as a naval oil reserve. Some traces of oil have been found on its borders, but for the most part its qualities and resources are a matter of speculation. The exploration recently begun is under the direction of six scientists of the interior department, whose primary task will be to investigate oil mining possibilities, but who in addition will make the first map of the region ever drawn on scientific lines.

Four or five summers are to be consumed before the exploration is complete, but during the present season it is hoped to complete a preliminary reconnaissance and determine the location of the most promising oil fields. For this purpose the geologists and topographers and their camp hands have divided into three parties, in the hope that by this means most of the tract can be covered before winter begins.

The few facts known about the district are that it consists mainly of a flat and barren land near the seacoast, a narrow strip of which has been visited by white men, and that in the south it includes a high, barren range of mountains. It is bounded on the north and west by the Arctic ocean, on the south by the Endicott range, and on the east by the Colville river.

Whalers and a few other hardy adventures have visited the coast and several small posts have been organized. Several oil companies have sent prospectors to look over the many oil seeps to be seen near the coast, but no legal claims of permits for exploitation of the resources have been granted. In places the surface oil is said to have been collected in small ponds and puddles, and semi-solid tar residues have been reported.

Whether the federal government will undertake the development of the territory will be determined later. The working season would be so short, however, and the difficulties of drilling, storing and transportation so immense, that unless oil is discovered in great quantities leases will be granted in private firms.

Since the area is situated entirely within the Arctic circle, not only would transportation distances be great, but the cold would prevent a working season of more than a few months each year. The department's men were unable to work until July because of ice conditions, and they will hardly be able to continue later than the middle of September.

ITALIANS BUILD AIR-FLYER WITH TINY 3 H. P. ENGINE

ROME—The small airplane is claiming the interested attention of aviators in Italy, who are experimenting in this field as are their colleagues in England, France and the United States.

Italian airmen have produced the "Swallow," said to be the smallest plane in the world, with an engine of three horse power. So pleased are they that 100 machines are in course of construction.

COP HAS JOB OF OFFICIAL SPANKER TO FRISCO CHINESE

SAN FRANCISCO—"Spanking neatly done" might be the sign on the door of the headquarters of the Chinatown squad at the Hall of Justice here. Police Corporal Jack Floyd is the official spanker, and rarely a day passes that he does not imprint his trademark on some incorrigible Chinese youth.

Corporal Floyd, who, because of the fierce aspect, he assumes on punitive occasions, is also known as the "Mandarin of Chinatown." First entered his present profession about three months ago when a worried Oriental parent confided to him:

"My boy, Sam, he no like go school. All-time him away. Take him to little court—no good. No like juvenile court. Sam just him away some more. You spanked him. Mistuh Floyd." And Floyd did.

So appreciative was the parent of Floyd's handiwork that he presented him with a canary bird in a picturesque cage. Today a dozen canary birds at the Hall of Justice testify that Floyd's business is expanding.

POLISH DIET AIDS SPORTS

WARSAW—A special Sports Commission of the Diet has been formed to deal with all matters of athletics and physical education in Poland. One of the first decisions of this commission was that no resolution of a legislative character will be passed without previous communication with the Polish Committee of the Olympiad and the Polish Union of sporting organizations.

SPECIAL SESSION NOT NEEDED UNTIL EARLY NEXT YEAR

Schools Have Funds to Keep Going Until February or March

MADISON, Wis.—If Gov. John J. Blaine decides to call a special session of the legislature it will not be necessary to hold the session before February or March.

University and normal schools have sufficient funds to carry them to that time without curtailment and without a special appropriation.

The normal schools have $55,000 less for operation than they had last year. Of this sum $50,000 had been spent through the state board of education which has been abolished and went for additional teaching staff where the enrollment in the normal schools increased.

The $50,000 additional appropriation which was spent in this way has been cut off but the same teaching staff that it increased is being continued without reduction. A fund of $5,000 which had been used for summer sessions has also been discontinued. So far Gov. Blaine has said nothing concerning the calling of a special session and men who have worked with him on state problems assert that he had not yet given serious consideration to the subject.

TROUT HIDE IN VAIN

MANCHESTER, N. H.—Coon and mink have been making serious inroads into the supply of trout in the streams of New Hampshire, according to Matt L. Bartlett, commissioner of fisheries and game.

Low water has forced the fish in large numbers to take refuge in deep holes and pools. "It is right here," says Mr. Bartlett, "that the animal fishermen, lovers of brook trout as much as the epicures of the human family, come into their own. Trapped in these holes and unable to make their escape, trout, even the larger specimens, readily become victims of the sly mink and coon."

LEVITAN PRAISES BLUE SKY LAWS TO COMMISSIONERS

Says Average Man Finds it Harder to Keep than Make Money

MADISON, Wis.—Wisconsin has lost millions through the purchase of "gold bricks" by its people who find it harder to keep money than to make it, Solomon Levitan, state treasurer, declared speaking at a banquet of the National Association of Securities Commissioners Thursday night.

Levitan said the blue sky law one of the best laws on our statutes and the most deserving of enforcement. The average man has more difficulty in keeping his money than in making it. People as a whole are ignorant of investments and securities. Many a man who has worked hard all his life and put by a little savings for his old age has been robbed of all he owns by unscrupulous stock salesmen. Wisconsin has lost millions in gold bricks.

"I am glad that I was able to have a share in the enactment of Wisconsin's blue sky law. Through my connections as a lawyer, I know how people were being taken advantage of. I thought this matter to the attention of the governor and by incorporation of the recommendation for a blue sky law in his next message to the legislature, our present law is the result."

"I believe this law is a step in the right direction. Yet I feel that we must yet provide a law that is more feasible. We must put teeth in our blue sky legislation. We must provide a greater punishment for offenders."

MUNICH, (A. P.)—Bavaria will have one of the world's greatest new plants when the construction of the Middle Isar river is completed.

Seven thousand workmen are engaged in constructing a new bed for the river which will make it possible to develop an electric current generating 450,000 kilowatts yearly. This will result in a saving of 500,000 tons of coal annually, the cost of which has been estimated at 400,000,000,000 paper marks.

MOVIES

"RANGELAND" AT THE CASINO TODAY AND SATURDAY

"Rangeland" is a thrilling story of the long-horn cattle country of Texas—a land of romance and adventure, where vast herds of cattle roamed unhindered until the coming of the homesteaders and sheepmen, the latter being the deadly foe of the cattleman. Law and order had to be maintained, and consequently, the sheriff had to appoint many deputies. He selected, with care men of nerve, sand and quick on the draw. Among his selections was a two-fisted, two-gun cowboy named Ned Williams, played by Neil Hart. Brand blotters, cattle rustlers and drifters, kept Ned Williams pretty busy maintaining law and order in the county. Ned was on the level and feared no man living, and lived up to the oath he took when his badge of office was handed to him. It was not a job that bothered him much about losing. See the rest at Casino today or tomorrow.

"LITTLE WILDCAT"

Alice Calhoun's picture, "Little Wildcat," which is being shown at the Majestic theater, is said by those who have seen it to be quite the best thing Miss Calhoun has done. A wealthy club man scientifically inclined decides upon a practical experiment in support of his theory that there is a divine spark in all women, no matter what the environment. He selects "Mag o' the Adler" to prove his point. Poor little pawn of fate, the offspring of crime and squalor, Mag seems a hopeless subject. How such a character is carefully remolded and emerges a complete justification of her benefactor's theory is the story.

THORNS AND ORANGE BLOSSOMS

The term all-star cast, so often misapplied to pictures, is justified in "Thorns and Orange Blossoms," the feature at the Rivoli theater this week. Practically every artist in the production has been either starred or featured in his own right.

Kenneth Harlan, who plays the male lead, is known to movie fans everywhere for his work with the Tailor sisters. Estelle Taylor has already been seen in "A Fool There Was" and "Monte Cristo," while Edith Roberts was starred in a number of Universal features as well as in Cecil B. DeMille's "Saturday Night."

"WAY DOWN EAST"

D. W. Griffith's picturization of "Way Down East" will be presented at the Rivoli theater tonight and Saturday with the following cast: Lillian Gish, Richard Barthelmess, Mary Hay, Burr McIntosh, Lowell Sherman, Creighton Hale, Mrs. Morgan Belmont, Kate Bruce, Edgar Nelson, George Neville, Vivian Ogden, Porter Strong, Josephine Bernard, Mrs. David Landau, Patricia Frenz, Florence Short, Emily Fitzroy and Myrtle Stuch.

Mr. Griffith's production of "Way Down East" represents ten months' work of the most exacting character. In his screen version of the story he has endeavored to follow closely the narrative of the stage play, with here and there a digression for the purpose of dramatic value or elaboration.

Viscountess Astor said more women police were needed in London for patrol duty, and she appealed to the Home Secretary to increase their number and widen their authority.

URGES CAPITAL OF EAST TO DEVELOP WESTERN MINING

Utah Official Says State is Able to Protect Investors

MADISON, Wis.—The romance of the west found its way into the deliberations of the Securities Commissioners of the several states of the union at their session here today. Commissioner H. C. Hicks of Salt Lake City, Utah urged the support of eastern capital in the development of the mining districts.

The securities commissioner of many of the eastern and central states, he declared, had much of the future of mining development of the west in their power. The classification of most mining ventures as hazardous, Mr. Hicks said, is not fair to the industry and cited figures to show that more grocery ventures fail than do mines which are a legitimate proposition.

"The commissioners," he said, "can recognize the sincerity of the promoters of legitimate ventures, and it is not our desire in any way to have permission to sell stock granted to those who develop companies composed of speculators who have never seen a mine. The great east should aid in the development of the great west."

The best means of regulating the securities salesman, H. C. Hicks of Lansing, Mich., declared, is in the education of the people and in the education of banks. Bankers who refuse to take the notes offered for sale when not properly secured, will go a long way, he said.

SIOUX INDIANS TO HONOR MAN WHO SPENT LIFETIME IN SERVICE TO REDSKINS

NEW YORK.—By The Associated Press.—Five thousand Sioux Indians will do unique honor to a pale faced brother in the heart of the South Dakota prairie on August 19, when Rev. Dr. Edward Ashley, friend of Roosevelt and Sittling Bull and the long line of Dakotan braves who were famous in Indian warfare, will round out his fiftieth year of service as a missionary among the red men.

Dr. Ashley is the sole survivor of the framers of the treaty of 1876 which opened the Black Hills country to gold seekers, stripping the Indians of their hunting grounds and incidentally leading to the Custer massacre at Little Big Horn. Later he was present on the Cheyenne River reservation during the ghost dance, or Messiah craze, which culminated in the battle of Wounded Knee, where the federal troops avenged the slaughter of Custer and his men. Still later he fell to his lot to lead to Christ, Chief Gant, one of the chief participants in the Little Big Horn affair, of whom he gives testimony that "for the rest of his life he was a conscientious Christian."

As a boy, Dr. Ashley came to Michigan from England to practice the trade of carpenter. But the mission field attracted him, and within a few months he was on his way to the Dakotas where he entered service under the late Bishop Haro. In the ensuing fifty years his life was spent among the Indians, counseling and advising them, acting as intermediary for them in their relations with the government at Washington, serving on their tribal councils, ministering to them when they were ill, acting as peace maker, drilling them in the ways of civilization. He has been the personal friend and confidant of such noted chiefs as White Bear, Bad Lodge, Drifting Goose, Rain-in-the-Face, Sittling Bull, Bull Knife, Gant and others. He has mastered half a dozen Indian dialects, and for his services in preserving the language of the Yanktons, Sissetons and other tribes of the Sioux nation

BEHAVIOR CLINIC IN CHICAGO TO STUDY UNRULY CHILDREN

New Institution. Second of Kind in World, Established by Rush Medical College

CHICAGO, Ill.—By The Associated Press.—A clinic for unruly children, second of its kind in the world, is to be established at Rush Medical College, according to Dr. C. G. Gruller, head of the children's department of the school.

"There is too much mother in the modern family," declared Dr. Gruller. "That is the reason unruly children in American homes are more numerous than ever before. In former days families were larger. Nowadays when we have one and two children in a family, the youngsters get too much attention. They become self-centered and consequently unruly. This is the only child." He is the product of modern civilization, and he is a social and medical problem.

The new clinic at Rush will specialize in nervous children between the ages of 2 and 14.

Nurses and physicians of the new dispensary will investigate home conditions first. In a majority of cases, they say, the trouble is not with the child but with the home. Nine times out of ten he has developed an exaggerated ego. He has been petted too much.

"If you get a child's environment, you change his whole life," said Dr. Gruller. "Small families are bad for children. If they spend a short time in the company of other children, they get their minds off themselves and are cured completely."

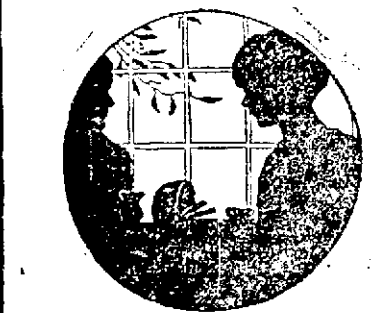

"The cause of undernourishment usually is this same exaggerated ego. When a child stops eating or eating sparingly, he soon learns the whole family is upset. He enjoys being the center of interest."

"The behavior clinic has as its object the correction of obstinacy, selfishness and other faults. Likely is for the child is bored. We try to give him something to think about. We get him interested in something. We do not scold, but if we promise punishment, we do not weaken. A child soon learns when his parents' threats are not to be feared."

The only other clinic in the world specializing in the behavioristic problems of children is in Boston.

ABOUT FRANK STEARNS "COLONEL HOUSE" OF NEW COOLIDGE ADMINISTRATION

WASHINGTON—A stocky and broad-shouldered man in a square-jawed business suit, ruddy of face, gray of hair, with a bristling gray mustache shading rather thick, full lips and with keen, gray eyes shining through heavy-lensed glasses, is Calvin Coolidge's right-hand confidant and counselor.

During the press of events crowding his first days in office the new president has conferred with cabinet members and public officials concerning the arrangements for President Harding's funeral, and on routine matters of administration that have had to be met. But whatever conference he has had with respect to administration, policies and the course he is to follow as chief executive of the nation, have been not with the politicians and cabinet officials, but with the broad-shouldered, gray-haired Boston business man—Frank W. Stearns.

Stearns is one of the few men who really know Coolidge—who have broken through the crust of silence and reserve which encases this silent president from New England. And he is the man to whom Coolidge looks, more than any other, for sage, disinterested, nonpolitical advice.

College spirit is back of this friendship. Although Stearns is 67 to Coolidge's 51, they were first drawn together by mutual love of their alma mater, Amherst College, from which Stearns graduated in the class of '78 and Coolidge in '95.

For years the bigger New England colleges had monopolized Republican officeholding in Massachusetts. Stearns, as an active and ardent Amherstite, and as an Amherst trustee, didn't like it. He looked about for an Amherst man who could break the ice and he found Coolidge, then a member of the Massachusetts senate.

Stearns already has been labeled the "Warwick," the "Mark Hanna," the "Col. House" of the Coolidge administration. But he doesn't mind it. He's putting Amherst College on the map.

Attack on Contracts to Be Heard Sept. 22 by Supreme Court

MADISON, Wis.—The fate of the northern Wisconsin tobacco pool, the largest co-operative enterprise ever launched in Wisconsin, depends on the decision of a suit to be heard in the supreme court on Saturday, September 22.

The suit is brought by the pool against the Bekkedal and other private tobacco interests over the validity of contracts entered into by the pool with Wisconsin growers.

The pool succeeded in getting contracts for most of the tobacco being grown in the state, but in a number of cases private buyers then purchased the supply.

If the court holds that the pool has not the power to bind growers with contracts before the buying season, it is claimed that the pool will practically be put out of business, because of the need to have knowledge of the actual amount of leaf to be handled before the sale opens.

EXPERTS EXPLAIN HOW BEES KEEP BUSY IN HIVE

Curious Habits of Honey-makers Told at Apiarists' Convention

MADISON, Wis.—The best manner of disposing of the products of the honey bee, from all standpoints was discussed at today's meeting of the Beekeepers' conference and field meet here this week.

Beginning with the cost of honey production which was discussed by E. W. Atkins of Watertown, Wis., selling of honey, marketing of beeswax, value of honey exhibits, and roadside selling of honey were discussed by bee men. In addition John M. Kelly of Baraboo discussed advertising and urged the beekeepers not to hold back in their advertising activities. Mr. Kelly assured the representatives of the industry that advertising is the sure way to build up any growing industry.

Division of Labor

Among the most interesting discussions of the week's meeting was a talk by W. J. Nolan of Washington, D. C., who spoke on the division of labor among the bees. He said that the bees are among the most orderly workers in the lower forms of life, and that the various members of the hives are assigned to regular duties which they perform exclusively while on the assignment. However, the bees are not specialists, with some exceptions, but can do any of the work about the hive.

The queen bee, as everyone knows, he said, has her special duty and at times lays three times her weight of eggs during a day. The development of the young is astonishingly rapid during the first three days, being at the rate of 1,000 times. The rapidity of development necessitates a large amount of food which is adequately provided by the bees assigned to the collection of nectar, as is proven by the amount of honey on the market for human consumption.

The average bee hive consumes 400 pounds of honey a year, and in addition to this amount sufficient honey is produced to make it a staple food product.

Guard from Aliens

Investigation of the bee hive shows that guards are stationed at the entrance and prevent any but the regular members of the hive from entering. Professor Nolan said he believed that many other bees come in during the course of the day, but that any intruders are forced from the entrance by the guards.

In addition to the assignment of guards, there are bees who care for the upkeep of the home, rearing the broods, which is one of the most important tasks, keeping the hive clean and cementing up whatever cracks may develop.

The field duties are among the most important, and in this connection he said one finds the most interesting field of investigation.

The recruiting of nectar dance is one of the most interesting performances in the bee life. A field worker in making the rounds of the various places where nectar may be found comes upon a large store of the native product. Immediately the bee goes for itself and flies as rapidly as possible to the hive. There it begins a dance, which sometimes lasts only a few seconds and at other times lasts more than a minute.

Entering the hive, the bee deposits its nectar and begins the dance, which is performed on the six cells next to the one in the comb which is being filled. Sometimes there are as many as twenty turnings in the dance. As soon as it is begun the other bees become excited and often join in, or dash for the exit of the hive to be away in search for the treasure.

At times there are as many as three repetitions of the dance before the discoverer leaves the hive. Generally, unless the deposit which has been found, is especially large, the leader will dance only once and then leave for another load. If, however, the find has been especially rich, the bee will dance two or three times and the hive will become deserted of all field workers who flock to the location.

When the dance begins, other bees often join in, and leave the hive with the leader of the dance, following it to the nectar.

Those assigned to other duties do not leave them, although their excitement can be noted. Professor Nolan said it is interesting to note that the bees do not tend to the larvae for a time, then go for nectar and return and build comb, but continue at their assignments during the day.

Cabinets of cigars, containing as many as 10,000, and costing up to $5,000, are luxuries procurable by millionaires.
